

Developing Areas Research Group (DARG) of the Royal Geographical Society (with The Institute of British Geographers)

Undergraduate Dissertation Prize Entries 2006

The following students are to be congratulated on having their dissertations submitted for the DARG/Earthscan Dissertation Prize.

Brooks, Andre (King's College London) 'Upland Rice Growing, Food Security and Rural Livelihoods in Kondiu: A case study for the Highlands of Papua New Guinea'

Crawford, Amanda (Oxford) 'Indigenous NGOs as mediators in a globalised conservation discourse The Royal Society for the Conservation of nature (RSCN) and the development of the Dana Nature Reserve, Jordan'

Dangerfield, Caroline (Lancaster) 'HIV/AIDS and its impacts on children: A Zambian Case Study'

Farrell, Keiran (Birmingham) 'Implementation of Appropriate Development in Sampela A comparison between Bajo and development organisers' perceptions of poverty alleviation'

Figures, Emma (Cambridge) 'Changes to society and gender dimensions in post-tsunami relief'

Gill, Russell (Edinburgh) 'Grassroots development in the Gambia: Empowering Communities for Reproducing Inferiority'

Holtshausen, Laura (Exeter) 'Can the multinational corporation Unilever be considered a viable option in providing a model of care for children orphaned by HIV/AIDS in South Africa'

Luikham, Siobhan (UCL) 'Why don't the kids go to school ? A comparative study of the constraints on achievement of free compulsory universal basic education (fCUBE) in Ghana from the household perspective'

Webster, Laura (Newcastle) 'The Hand of death: how the British Press Imaged Death and Influenced the Aid Response in the Asian Tsunami'