COL is an intergovernmental organisation created by Commonwealth Heads of Government to encourage the development and sharing of open and distance education knowledge, resources and technologies.

“For my generation the great innovation was the course team. For the next I suspect that it will be Open Educational Resources.”

Hi all, for some of you it will be interesting to hear that the European Community launches the prototype of a new digital library, containing 2 million digital objects, "including film material, photos, paintings, sounds, maps, manuscripts, books, newspapers and archival papers".

And: "The intention is that by 2010 the Europeana portal will give everybody direct access to well over 6 million" digital materials.

See http://dev.europeana.eu/about.php

For users it will enable a simultaneous thematic search on different levels.

What I read is that licensing issues are not yet clarified.

Content themes for the prototype contain Cities, Social life, Music, Crime and punishment as well as Travel and tourism.

The date of launch has been shifted to mid-December due to technical problems (The interest was too big, the servers could not stand 10 million hits per hour).

Viva libre.

Statement of purpose

The purpose of WikiEducator is to build an international and sustainable community of educators (teachers, lecturers, trainers) and other professionals from the formal and informal sectors who work collaboratively on:

- building capacity to design, develop and implement open education materials;
- developing content which meets the requirements of the free cultural works definition for all sectors and levels;
- establishing the connections required for implementing relevant technology innovations but also fostering strategic relationships with partners around the world to leverage the benefits of sustainable ecosystems of mass-collaboration.
